USO of Missouri's Red Rock & Blue Benefit Concert

Express Scripts joined USO service members and music fans at the USO of Missouri's Red Rock & Blue Benefit Concert on Friday, October 26th. This year's event took place at The Pageant in St. Louis. To show support for the cause, Express Scripts donated $25,000 to the USO of Missouri.

The USO of Missouri's mission is to lift the spirits of military personnel and their families by providing a "touch of home" no matter where their travels take them. This caring is apparent through the USO facilities, overall support and numerous family events. The generosity of the organization reaches over 270,000 of America's troops and their families per year.

Several Express Scripts employees attended the concert, including Anissa Toenjes, regional pharmacy marketing manager, Aaron Jones, recruiter, and Michael Johnston, senior business manager. Anissa stated, "Not only was the crowd and the country music terrific, but it's nice to be part of an event that Express Scripts supports. The USO does a tremendous amount of work for our military families and I am proud our company is involved."

The third annual concert was headlined by country singer, songwriter and four-time Academy of Country Music nominee, Lee Brice. Brice is known for his mash up of honky-tonk sounds and contemporary rock and roll with his well-known hits like "Love Like Crazy" and "A Woman Like You."
