Heroes of Military Medicine Awards

Express Scripts recently sponsored the Heroes of Military Medicine Awards Dinner. The event took place at the Andrew W. Mellon Auditorium on May 1, 2013 in Washington, DC.

Heroes of Military Medicine Award are presented by the Center of Public-Private Partnerships at the Henry M. Jackson Foundation. The awards honor outstanding contributions by individuals who distinguish themselves through dedication to advancing medicine and enhancing the lives and health of our nation's wounded, ill and injured service members, veterans and their families.

This year's emcee was Fox News National Security Correspondent, Jennifer Griffin with a keynote speech from Admiral William H. McRaven, USN. The Lifetime Achievement Award was given to The Honorable James B. Peak, MD. General Joseph F. Dunford, Jr., USMC received the Hero of Military Medicine Senior Leader Honoree award. Honorees of Heroes of Military Medicine were Colonel Nelson L. Michael, MD, PhD, USA, Lieutenant Colonel Raymond Fang, MD, FACS, USAF and Hospital Corpsman First Class Darrel L. Enos, USN (posthumously awarded).

The Center for Public-Private Partnerships at the Henry M. Jackson Foundation for Advancement of Military Medicine brings military and civilian experts, programs and resources together to address medical challenges for service members.
